REPORT NO.

25X1X

1. When the North Koreans retreated from Seoul in late September 1950, they took with them a large number of Republic of Korea political leaders and officials. Part of these were transferred to camps in Manchuria.
2. Ten leading South Korean officials were held in November at a camp in the Peiling (123-5, 41-50) area of Mukden. They were transferred to the prison at Tienling Hsien (123-51, 42-18) in late December and were still held there in early January 1951.
3. In early January, North Korean government officials had arranged for officers of the ROK Army and other United Nations forces who might be captured in the future to be detained in the prison at Liaoyang Hsien (123-12, 41-15).
